

OIL CHANGES & PREVENTATIVE MAINTENANCE

Is changing your engine oil every 5000 kms a rip-off? Absolutely not! We don't recommend oil changes every 5000kms because we like doing them, but because vehicles that have been serviced regularly are more reliable than those that haven't. Oil changes prevent plugged oil passages or oil pump inlet screens, lifter or other engine noises, stuck piston rings, loss of oil pressure, premature engine wear or failure. These are all symptoms of extended oil changes.

Engine oil cleans your engine and carries away worn metal, dirt and moisture. These materials increase friction on parts and seals and cause seals and gaskets to harden. The extra cost of changing your oil every 5,000 kms pales in comparison to engine repair. Changing the oil in a vehicle is the easiest, most cost-effective insurance against lubricant-related engine damage.
